All C-2 Property Value Threatened In Schultz Case

Carrying out instructions from the city council, Larry Rose, Carmel City Clerk, sent a letter to each property owner in the C-2 zone (commercial service and light industry) yesterday to inform them that their property interests would be involved in an appeal from a planning commission decision to be heard by the city council Wednesday night.

If the council upholds the planning commission's ruling under an interim ordinance, property in C-2 zone will be restricted to light industrial and commercial service use and may not be used also for apartments, stores, etc. as is now allowed by ordinance.

This issue is: Do the property owners in this zone, and the rest of Carmel want this area to be frozen for commercial services and light industry only, so that property owners must actively seek uses that heretofore have been tolerated but not welcomed?

Also, if the appeal is sustained, the planning commission's policy will be embodied in the new zoning ordinance which will make such properties as Walt's newly completed grocery a non-conforming building which may not be enlarged or extended, and if it burned down, may not be rebuilt. A laundry, stable, planing mill or some such service or industry would have to be constructed.

Most little towns want light industry and commercial services because they bring in payroll. Payroll means little to Carmel since most of the people who work here live in Pacific Grove or Monterey.

property within the zone affected by the ruling — the C-2 (commercial service) zone — may be interested in the proceedings.

Briefly, the Planning Commission declined to approve plans of Mr. and Mrs. Schultz to construct a building on the Northwest corner of Junipero and 6th Avenues containing apartments and retail store space. The Commission exercised discretion given to it under the interim zoning ordinance to find that the intended use was not compatible with surrounding uses in the C-2 district. The Commission based this finding on its belief that commercial service district should be reserved for those uses which are permitted within the City but not within the R-1 (residential) or C-1 (commercial) zones, such as mills, supply yards, small manufactories, service stations, certain wholesale and retail enterprises, and so forth.

The Council recognizes that its decision may have profound influence on the character of the zone, and perhaps the values within it as well. The Council will, therefore, at the time of the hearing, welcome any relevant expression bearing on your particular interest in the matter. You may choose to make a personal appearance, or be represented, or submit a written communication.

"This office will be glad to undertake a more detailed explanation of the considerations involved if you believe that it will be of assistance to you in determining the effect on your interests which this matter implies."

The letter:

"On Wednesday, 19 September, at 8:00 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the Town Hall, the City Council will consider an appeal by Dorothy Orcutt Schultz and Charles William Schultz from a decision of the Planning Commission. It is the belief of the City Council that you, as an owner of

Youth Center To Start Fund Drive Next Week

BY BABS BALZER

Next week the Carmel Youth Center will launch a door-to-door campaign to raise funds to continue its operation. The teenagers will be working toward a goal of $6500. This sum is needed to complete the operating budget. In the past years the Community Chest contributed the main portion of the budget. Now that the Community Chest can no longer afford to keep supporting all of the Peninsula Youth Centers, the Carmel Center is left with insufficient funds. The kids themselves have raised over $17,000 with their activities in the last six years, but the amount that they raise with the annual Youth Center Follies and other activities is not enough to keep the doors open. Therefore the fund raising campaign has become necessary.

The Youth Center has been operating so smoothly for the six years of its existence that we have begun to take its place in the community for granted. It is at a time like this that we begin to think about what goes on behind the scenes. How does the Center actually operate, and what does it offer?

The Youth Center is owned and operated by approximately 450 teenagers... the members. The members, who have made their own rules and planned their own activities, are Carmel youths between the ages of 13 and 21, who pay an annual membership fee of one dollar. The kids serve as their own gardeners and janitors, work to raise money for improvements they feel are necessary, such as the new study hall. The teenagers take pride in this building which was built by the adults of the community contributing material, labor and money.

Pingpong tables, shuffleboard, pool tables, horse shoes, table games, a juke box, television and weekly movies are among the things available. There are frequent juke box dances and several orchestra dances each year. Anything from a coke to a full dinner may be obtained at the self-supporting, non-profit snack bar. For those who have homework with them, a study hall with a small reference library was put up by the teenagers during the past year. Anyone with a flare for the stage has his chance before the footlights at the annual Youth Follies and the Christmas Capers. The Center, which has become a second home to many teenagers, is open six days and six nights a week.

The members take an active part in community affairs, helping with drives such as The March of (Continued on Page Eleven)

Highlands Wants Out Of Recreation And Park Dist. Hearing Continued Mon.

A continuation of Tuesday's hearing on the Carmel Consolidated Recreation, Park and Parkway District will be held Monday morning, 11:15 o'clock in the Supervisors' Chambers in the Salinas Courthouse.

The Carmel Highlands Association wired the County Board of Supervisors at Tuesday's hearing; "Highlands residents have enough green belt of their own. They don't want to be taxed to create a green belt for Carmel."

They had packed the Highlands Fire House on Monday night and unanimously voted against "being taxed 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation to create a green belt for Carmel." Dr. H. J. Templeton was appointed to send the telegram notifying the supervisors of their objections.

The supervisors received three other protest telegrams from property owners in lower Carmel Valley and the area between the Carmel River and Point Lobos. J. G. Burnett, appeared at the hearing in the interest of his wife and Mrs. Thomas F. Riley, who own property near Point Lobos. He said that additional taxes would be a burden; that the district would not benefit the Highlands area which already has sufficient park, and he proposed, as did the property owners who had telegraphed their objections, that the Carmel River be the southern boundary of the district.

William Wakefield, Carmel Unified School District Recreation Director, who was there to support the proposed district, agreed (Continued on Page Fourteen)

Dear Wilma:

Matters concerning the youth of Carmel are progressing smoothly these days. So much so that the average citizen is unaware that this has come about through the combined efforts of our school system, The Carmel Youth Center and the understanding, but firm handling by Carmel's Chief of Police and the department's officers.

The recreational and social activities of the Youth Center have successfully provided our youth with wholesome and enjoyable activities that have to a great extent filled the leisure hours that formerly were both a trial to the youth themselves and to the community.

As Police Commissioner, these observations have become most apparent, having been familiar with the situation before the existence of the Youth Center and particularly so since its institution.

The Carmel Youth Center deserves the wholehearted financial support of the community.

Sincerely,

John Chitwood,
Police Commissioner

CCAL FOOTBALL JAMBOREE SET FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Salinas Union High School hosts the Coast Counties Athletic League annual Football Jamboree, Friday night, September 14th, at 7:00 o'clock. Twelve schools are entered in the 1956 grid festival with Live Oak, Pacific Grove, Gilroy, King City, Monterey and Salinas representing the West and San Lorenzo, Carmel, Gonzales, Hollister, Watsonville and Santa Cruz upholding the honor of the East. Each game consists of two 7½ minute quarters with the following teams taking over at the spot where the ball was left by the preceding teams.

Besides the competition on the gridiron, there will be awards for the top rooting sections and performance by the yell leading teams. All the schools will have organized rooting sections with the West representatives on one side of the stadium and the East rooters on the other.

The Jamboree has become increasingly popular each year and has given varsity players an excellent opportunity to get the feel of actual game play before entering the regular league schedule. Football officials are also given a chance to shake out the kinks before embarking on another season of whistle tooting, and the coaches have an opportunity to observe the new officials and become familiar with the rules changes.

Action gets underway at 7:00 o'clock with Live Oak (Morgan Hill) lining up against the only non-league team in the Jamboree, San Lorenzo (Boulder Creek). Two of the league's hottest rivals, Carmel and Pacific Grove square off at 7:30 in a preview of the big Veteran's Day natural which is played every year. Another pair of arch rivals take the field at 8:10 when King City and Gonzales take over. Hollister and Gilroy meet at 8:45 and will be followed by Monterey and Watsonville at 9:20 and Salinas and Santa Cruz at 9:55. If everything goes according to schedule, the Jamboree will be history by 10:30 sharp.

Carmel will go into action with an offensive eleven of Pat Harney and Bob Durbrow, ends; Paul Prince and Bob Leidig, tackles; Joe Mason and Neil Giarratana, guards; Parker Pollock, center; Jack Faia and Bill Hook, halfbacks; Andy Gray, fullback; and Charley Dawson, quarterback. The defensive unit will be manned by Art Wilkerson and Don Smith, ends; Fred Nelson and Brian Leidig, tackles, Mike Meheen and Malcolm Burdis, guards; Charley Dawson and John Stiles, linebackers; Clyde Klaumann and Jack Faia, halfbacks, and Cim Conway, safety.

Admission rates for the Jamboree are: adults 80c, students 40c, children 25c. The gates at the Salinas High Stadium will be open at 6:30 for those desiring special seat locations.

Plans Laid For Little League Baseball in Carmel—Inspired by a convincing talk by Gene Robertson, guiding director of the Salinas Little League, a group of Carmel's top baseball boosters held an organization meeting last week and came up with plans for Little League baseball in Carmel. Officials elected to guide the formation of Little League affairs were: George McNeal, president; Bill Woolsey, vice-president; Ken Bennett, secretary; and Ralph Thompson, treasurer. Jack Miller, on old pro with plenty of baseball savvy, will head a group to handle field construction and equipment installation. Most likely site for the Little League field is the field near the Mission which is just waiting for somebody to prepare it for some good healthy baseball action.

game unfolds at the MPC Stadium. Coach Bill Abbey made an extended tour into Oregon this summer and came up with some football goodies out of the Northwest. In practice sessions, the visiting students from Oregon have shown real gridiron ability and could be the answer to a championship season for Coach Bill and his Lobos. Saturday night's intrasquad will be a full length game with league officials blowing the whistle and the spirited bid for positions on the starting eleven should produce some good hard-hitting football.

Work Started On Carmel High Baseball Diamond—The big equipment is rolling and the Carmel High baseball diamond south of the football field is in the early stages of becoming a reality. The grading project, underwritten by the hustling Carmel Lions Club members, is about half finished and the field will be ready for diamond construction and seeding by the first of November. Surrounded by a wire fence similar to El Estero Park in Monterey, the Carmel field will have a 300-foot carry to the outfield fences which should be a good challenge to the high school hitters. With enough drop to assure natural drainage, the field will be ready for immediate use after any rains and the prep pastimers won't have to take a layoff to wait for the field to dry. Although the Padres have won their share of baseball championships without having a baseball diamond, they have been under a handicap and will enjoy the luxury of a regulation playing field.

CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY CONCERT SEPTEMBER 23

The Carmel Chamber Music Society under the direction of Gilbert Boyer will have its first concert of the season on Sunday evening, September 23. Milton Mayer Rides Herd On 675 Teeners

Milton and Jane Mayer, Julie, Rock and Dicken, drove into Carmel on Labor Day in the Volkswagen bus which they bought during the past year spent in Europe. Next day Rock reported for freshman classes at Carmel High School, Dicken to the sixth grade at Sunset and Julie is relaxing until next week when she returns for her senior year at Carleton College in Minnesota.

The Mayer family came home from Europe on a ship specially chartered to bring European teenagers to the United States to attend high schools here under the American Field Services exchange student plan. Milton was educational director for the group.

"It was great!" is Jane's report on the Atlantic crossing.

The Mayers have been away from Carmel since June 1, 1955. They spent the first summer in the Eastern United States with Milton giving seminars for the American Friends' Service. On November 1, 1955, they sailed for Europe.

Julie received a full scholarship at the University of Marburg in Germany and the two boys attended L'Ecole d'Humanite in Switzerland. Christmas the whole family spent in Marburg, where they had previously lived for a year while Milton wrote They Thought They Were Free. Spring vacation the Mayers all travelled in a Volkswagen bus to Italy. In between the vacation trips Jane and Milton spent a month each in Sweden, Italy, Austria, France and Germany, while Milton recorded interviews with residents of these countries to be broadcast in the United States from university and educational radio stations on Voices of Europe programs. He also began a book while in Northern Italy.

The Mayers saw the Winter Olympics at Cortina in Italy. They bought their Volkswagen bus in Paris during the latter part of their stay abroad, drove it in England, France and Belgium and drove across country with a stop in Aspen, where Milton delivered seminars, and on home to Carmel.

"We wouldn't have missed the year in Europe," says Jane, "but we're exhausted and so glad to be back in Carmel."

Letter To The Editor . . .

Carmel, Calif.
Sept. 12, 1956

Dear Mrs. Cook:

I note that among the avowed purposes of the proposed Plan are "to preserve the primarily residential character of the community" and "to prevent development which would be inharmonious with the present character of Carmel".

As a resident of Carmel for 20 years, may I offer the suggestion that this Plan does neither of these things. Many others have already pointed out that the convenience of visitors is given precedence over that of the inhabitants. But it is especially the radical alteration of the essential character of Carmel which many of us most deplore.

I think many would agree that the very great charm of this village is its unique individuality plus the natural beauty which its residents have almost fanatically preserved. Like many others I have learned to back out of my garage in a curve which misses the pine in the driveway. We do not sacrifice trees to speed or convenience. Yet, the proposed Plan would slaughter some 300 trees on Junipero between Ocean and Rio Road. This section of Junipero is possibly the most beautiful and "Carmelish" of all our streets. To turn it into a four lane highway upon which all the traffic now shared by three streets, is concentrated, becomes a nightmarish vision.

The whole elaborate plan seems to me the nullification of all that Carmel has ever meant to most of its residents; the substitution of a highly artificial arrangement for the simplicity, naturalness and individuality which has been the essence of its character.

Can we not meet the essential needs by much simpler expedients? I offer the following suggestions:

(1) Parking:

Provide facilities as already suggested for unlimited parking lots on either side of Ocean on Junipero and Mission. These would be available to visitors who wish to visit the Carmel shops at their leisure. It is certainly not too much to ask them to pay for this privilege, and it should be a large source of revenue for the city.

But why penalize the residents by closing Ocean Avenue to all traffic and throwing away 400 convenient parking places, where residents can get within a block of bank or drugstore where they have to go on brief errands? Why not have a 20 minute parking limit on Ocean Avenue and enforce it? Personally, it seems to me that parking meters, while not an attraction, would be highly practical and remunerative and far less an evil than either the present situation or the proposed plan.

San Carlos, Dolores and Lincoln between Fourth and Eighth might have slightly longer parking, but I would think they too might well be limited to 30 or 40 minutes.

(2) Traffic:

It seems hardly fair to relieve the present incoming traffic areas at the greater expense of new areas where it would be doubly or trebly concentrated as proposed in the Plan. Also, I do not think we want to make it easier for people to come racing through our residential areas. As it is now, Rio Road has three turns before it enters San Carlos, which automatically slows traffic.

If it is imperative to relieve the congestion of incoming and outgoing traffic on upper Ocean Avenue, might not the truck route be widened and improved as to the bad corners, with a stop light at the junction with Highway 1 so that cars from Carmel could enter the highway with less peril than at present? This should take a portion of the present load from upper Ocean Avenue.

(3) To lessen the hazards at corners of the "gridiron streets", why not put stop signs at alternate corners, those on North-South streets alternating with those on East-West streets, so that every corner would have a stop sign, but every driver could safely go two blocks without stopping?

(4) The Green Belt is an enticing idea, but it is too late. The artichoke fields are already sold for developments.

However, it is not too late to save some of the shore, and let us make all haste to do so quickly, without waiting to solve every problem which confronts us!

Sincerely,
Evelyn Reynolds Ott

Letters On The Plan

776 Bush Street

August 13, 1956

Mr. Fred Leidig
Carmel, California

Dear Mr. Leidig:

Please add my name, via this letter of authority, to any petition you have protesting the "improvements" in Carmel.

I first saw Carmel more than 30 years ago. I fell in love with it and my dearest wish was to have a home there. For years I held this hope, even when it seemed impossible of realization due to two all but mortal illnesses, in addition to being bedbound for seven months with arthritis. When I became ambulant once more I renewed my struggles. Twice my hopes were dashed—once I got there with "too little" and the next time "too late". Finally, in December of 1954, by dint of much hard work and a small inheritance, I made a down payment on a house on Junipero Street, and since then have been making almost superhuman efforts to get it paid off.

I had been planning to move to Carmel next year and resume my writing career which had to be shunted aside in favor of work that would be more certainly and immediately lucrative. I have authored two books of verse—one a best seller, and a play. Have also worked as an entertainer and been, briefly, on the legitimate stage, and hoped to become identified with the little theatre group there. However, if this vandalism is permitted, I shall retire to the Middle West or the East and bid farewell to my dearest dream.

In the Middle West they are getting some sense and planting some trees instead of cutting them down. If this so-called "Progress" is not halted, California might well become the Dust Bowl of America and the Middle West blossom. I do not want to be over-emphatic to the point of ridiculousness, but I feel very strongly indeed. Carmel is not on the main route to any important point; it is a detour to even go there, and if the tourists find it inconvenient, that only adds to the charm. CARMEL SHOULD NOT BE CHANGED.

Please represent me at the meeting on August 15th.

Thank you,

Constance Ferris

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

The eminent English author St. John Ervine has written a vigorous biography of George Bernard Shaw, which is entitled Bernard Shaw, His Life, Work and Friends. It is a large book, written after 40 years of friendship with Shaw and his entire family. It is personal, critical and appreciative.

Another in the Rivers of America series is called River of the Carolinas: the Santee. It was written by Henry Savage. The books in this series offer not only a description of the river as it courses through the countryside, but also the history of that countryside.

When we received a very small handbook on wood finishing not long ago, we said that a larger and more complete one was on the way. It is here now, with its title simply Wood Finishing, and its author Robert Scharff. It is quite complete having both photographs and line drawings as illustrations to help clarify directions.

Dylan Thomas first came to America in 1950, when he was 35 years of age, and at the height of his power as a poet. He came at the invitation of John Brinnin, and during his visit here they began their friendship which lasted until the death of Thomas from acute alcoholism some four years later. Brinnin's new book Dylan Thomas in America is an account of that friendship, and of the happenings during the various visits which Thomas made to this country. In many ways, it is a sad book.

This leads us naturally to another book written by a man living in Southern California whose name is James Free. This book is for the problem drinker, and it is entitled Just One More. It is said that there are four million alcoholics in this country and many more millions who are heavy drinkers. A book such as this in their hands or the hands of members of their families, might offer a workable solution.

In the modern home the kitchen has become not only the kitchen, but a combination affair, a sort of Lord-high-everything-else of the house. This is a good thing. It becomes the core of the house where food preparation, consumption, and family togetherness makes for better living and closer relationships. A new book with a long but expressive title is called How to Choose, Plan, Equip and Decorate Kitchens. It is claimed to be the first definitive book on kitchens and is the work of Virginia Hart Wheeler. This book is for you if you are building a new house, remodeling an old one, or simply planning to do something about your kitchen, because it needs a lift of some kind.

Nella Gardener White has a new novel which is ready this week. It is called A Little More Than Kin. There are also The Token by Samuel Shellabarger, The Mandarins by Simone de Beauvoir, and The Cross of Iron by Heinrich.

CARL WAGENMAN LOSES FATHER

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wagenman returned to Carmel this week from Cleveland, Ohio, where they flew to attend the funeral on September 4 of Mr. Wagenman's father, S. C. Wagenman, paint manufacturer and founder of the Wagenman Paint Company in Cleveland.

Nicole Altair Shop In New Location

The French Shop of Nicole Altair is now in operation in newly-expanded premises on Sixth Avenue, just above Lincoln in Carmel. Her Sixth near Lincoln salon offers the finest facilities yet available to her clientele for the selection of Nicole Altair perfumes, imported Belgian laces (including wedding veils), flowers from France, Hobe jewelry and other unusual imports and cadeaux.

Nicole Altair has been the proprietor of a perfume salon in Carmel for over five years. She has made nationally known her two fragrances — Brise de Carmel and Rose de Monterey — the first inspired by Carmel itself, the second by the Sherman Rose adobe in Monterey.

Nicole Altair, a young French-Belgian, comes from a family of artists, musicians, and perfume craftsmen. She learned the art of blending fine fragrance in France. All oils and ingredients in her original scents come from abroad, and are compounded here from family formulae available to no other perfume manufacturer.

German War Bride . . .

By BOB KALLER

When the non-fraternization ban on social relations between Americans and Germans ended after the war, a series of marriages began that has resulted in a steady stream of war brides coming to this country in the years ever since.

Jutta Schorn Gabel, a young Carmelite, is in many ways typical of this entire group, especially in the relative ease with which she has adjusted to an American way of life. Born in Aachen, in the Rhineland, during the middle twenties, daughter of a department store owner, Jutta and her sister grew up in comparative comfort.

It might be of interest to note that her sister also married an American just a few years after Jutta, and now lives in Roanoke, Alabama.

The Rhineland, of course, was an internationalized section of Europe until 1936 and, as a schoolgirl, Jutta was barely conscious of the early rise of Hitler—until 1936, when the Nazis abruptly occupied the area.

Jutta's earliest conscious remembrances were of the Rhinelanders shaking their heads sadly and muttering, "here we go again," as they watched the German troops march in. To them, the memories of World War I were still very vivid. Besides a general anti-militarist sentiment considerably stronger than in most Germans, the Rhinelanders, as almost 100 percent Catholics, had heard rumors of persecution of the Church—and consequently welcomed Hitler with more reserve than much of the rest of Germany.

Their forebodings turned out to be well founded. Within three years the country was at war, and most of Jutta's neighbors were either in uniform or in a labor defense corps.

Like so many thousands of young girls of good family, in Germany as well as in America, Jutta and her sister actually passed through the years before and during the war virtually untouched by either the conflict or the government and its decrees.

As special students of English in school, the two Schorn girls were exempt from service in either the labor corps or the Nazi youth corps, and their lives continued in much the same pattern as formerly—alternating between home and school. The bombings during the war were about the only real disturbance to the even tenor of life, and one time a dud went through the Schorn house, killing the child of a tenant family living in the basement apartment. Otherwise the family was not bothered.

Aachen was occupied in late 1944, and the war ended shortly thereafter. Jutta says that in general her neighbors breathed a deep sigh of relief, glad that the war was over, and not even too particular at the moment as to how it had ended. Relief from tension was so great that not even being on the losing side seemed of much moment for the time.

Her future husband, now Captain Gabel of the U.S. Army, a professional officer, looked the family up shortly after the end of the war. The Captain had been born in Hamburg himself, but his family had come to America when he was a young boy, and he had gone to Beverly Hills High School. His family had known the Schorns, and though they were just a memory to Captain Gabel, he had their address and had promised to look them up. Quite obviously, Jutta did not remain a blur in his memory for long. In 1947, shortly after the end of the fraternization ban, they were married and came to Washington, D.C., to live, where Captain Gabel was stationed.

Jutta remembers being completely overwhelmed by the size and scope of New York, particularly by the bulk of the skyscrapers. In general, she says, she has never quite gotten over the impression of vast space that everything about America always gives to a stranger's eye.

The friendliness of everyday people and their

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY

*She will be among the upper angels,
The brilliant flower blooming in the yard,
The field of poetry; she will never
Go to sleep or like a broken bell hide
From the song, the chime of life. Hauntingly
She speaks white sonnets to the world of men,
Sometimes her mood is bitter like champagne,
But often sweet as New Year's wine, and like
A whispering star, a diamond in the sky,
All the loveliness and beauty of life
She breathed like an orchid out of herself,
A strange, gay medicine that healed our hearts,
Breakfasts of laughter all her poems are
A woman forever Christmas to us!*

—MARION SCHOEERLEIN

STORM LULLABY

*Night's quivering silence
Is slain
By slashing daggers
Of the rain.
Watery fingers
Probe and grope
To find the pulse
Of earth's lost hope.
Drum sticks of electric air
Beat shrill crescendoes of despair;
Wild, wild and wilder wild
Wind names me now
The tempest's child;
Storm cradles me
In violence deep
And wind and rain
Shout me to sleep.*

—B. JO KINNICK.

SOLITUDE

*The paths are beautiful that walk in peace
Holding the sky above them for a light—
Unhurried ways wherein all struggles cease
And where unshaken truth is seen aright.
The clamor of the world no longer blinds
The consecrated vision, nor conceals
The calm assurance that the heart now finds
In Solitude. The very silence heals.*

*Why are we pulled so constantly aside
By the coercion of our restless minds
Betraying that which rightfully we are?
The pure straight path alone we have not tried.
Therein at last the haste-worn spirit finds
The shining peace and stillness of a star.*

lack of ingrained suspicion was another shower of relief to a girl fresh from the tensions of a wartime Germany. To this day she has never quite gotten over this American open-handed approach.

Another thing that amazed her, was American style and chic.

This last was conditioned somewhat, of course, by the fact that she got a job in Washington as an interior decorator with the famed Garfinckel's, a top fashion center for that part of the country.

In 1950 she and her husband went back to Germany as tourists and in 1954-55 they were back once again, on duty with the Army. Jutta remarks that the change in the country since the official end of the occupation last year has been marked. The German attitude toward the Americans has promptly become one of regarding us as guests, and not too welcome ones at that.

Jutta herself found it hard to adjust to an old way of life. She had been thoroughly captivated and oriented to an American existence and confesses to breathing a sigh of relief when she sailed for the United States once again. At home, the thing that struck her most, was the large scale introduction of the installment plan, an almost absent feature of the pre-war German economy. As a result, thousands of people, she adds, were driving around in new cars, who would never have owned one previously.

There are many more women working in Germany, and the pace of industrial building is extremely rapid, Jutta says. "Otherwise things have not changed too much," she remarks, shaking her head.

For herself, as with thousands of other war brides, not only has she become an American citizen, but years of living here have conditioned her so thoroughly to certain patterns of thought and living, that too great a period of time in Germany today becomes not only irritating but almost painful.

She sighs contentedly as she closes the door of her home in Carmel and turns her attention to buying new furniture.

A Kewpie Palace . . .

(Excerpt from The Carmel Pine Cone of 1926)

"Once again someone has done something 'different' in Carmel. One night when you made your last trip to the Post Office, the lot opposite—the one owned by R. S. de Yoe—was just a lot; the next morning when you came down to Blood's to get that loaf of bread that you forgot the night before, the lot housed a fantastic little building.

"But it isn't one of those rubber stamp things that consist chiefly of cement, glass and right angles. To attempt to describe it would be like trying to tell of Queen Mab's grotto for the fairies or the Palace of the Kewpies, or the cave where the 'squidichum' squees swallow themselves'.

"Then again one may translate it in terms of North European architecture—the broken roof line, the nicked casements, the hipped gable in front that looks so like a bonnet to the architect that he calls it a hood, the irregular line of roof beginning with the peak of the gable, broken next by the chimney, the arched gate in the rock wall, and finally the wall, gradually disappearing in a clump of shrubbery.

"It isn't a material thing; it is purely imaginative. It is built of dreams—of moth wings—of the shimmer of moonlight.

"This fantastic little creation is going to be Bonnie Lee's shop where she may chance to sell everything from lemon drops to opera glasses, but we fancy that she will have some delightful Colonial antiques—perchance an old Grand-

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

THE "OUTDOOR LOBBY"

The following editorial appeared not long ago in the Eugene, Oregon, Register-Guard under the title, "Why the Outdoor People Get So Excited". This columnist agrees most heartily with the sentiments expressed and wishes herewith to thank the Register-Guard for this perceptive understanding of what makes wilderness conservationists tick.

"The outdoor lobby is a hardy little band. With limited funds these people battle for the preservation of wilderness areas, for the expansion of national and state parks, and for the defeat of the power dam, the chain saw, the curio stand and other manifestations of 'Progress', spelled always with a capital 'P'. They have been effective in most of their battles which they have carried on with an almost religious zeal. The rest of the human race sometimes wonders what these outdoorsy folks get so excited about. They wonder why citizens in Eugene, Oregon, get so inflamed about a proposal to build a dam at Echo Park and why citizens in New York and Colorado yell bloody murder when a power agency wants to build a power plant at Clear Lake, Oregon, or when lumbermen want to cut the trees from the Three Sisters Wilderness Area.

"A clue as to why appears in the Saturday Review in an article by Ashley Montagu, chairman of the Anthropology Department at Rutgers. Writing on The Annihilation of Privacy, Mr. Montagu suggests that civilized man is so much a part of 'society' that he is in danger of losing his identity as an individual. His eternal quest for a higher standard of living has been carried on successfully, but at a great cost in 'ulcers, mental breakdowns, homicide, violent crime, juvenile delinquency, alcoholic and drug addiction rates.' He needs sometimes to get off by himself, something he can rarely do.

"Every human being, he says, 'wants and needs to replenish his resources for being social by having a room of his own, as it were, a sanctuary to which he can retire and in which he can be alone by himself, undisturbed by the rumors and alarms of the outside world'.

"Getting away from it all is not easy. Noise, the mark of our civilization, is everywhere. Anybody can 'gate crash the sound barrier' in your home and cause your telephone to ring. It will ring amidst the babble of voices, the shifting of gears on the public street, and the sound of a siren or a factory whistle in the distance. In a lifetime of living with noise and interruption, man becomes dependent, too dependent, on other men. He grows fearful of being alone, of depending upon his own resources and those resources alone. Then he is ready for Big Brother. He is softened up for more invasions of his privacy, for more degradation of himself as an individual created in God's image.

"Periodically, the outdoor lobby agrees, man needs renewal. He needs to walk among the firs and the frogs and to test himself in a world that is not man-made. More and more people are realizing this. That's why the outdoor people get so excited when they inventory the wilderness and find so little left."

Needs Of Atomic Age Spiritual Lecturer Says

Man's real need in the Atomic age is the cultivation of the moral and spiritual qualities through which the power of God, good, is brought to bear upon human affairs, Mary Wellington Gale of San Francisco told an audience here Sunday afternoon.

Practical businessmen and physical scientists, as well as educators and religionists are aware, Mrs. Gale said, of the urgency of counteracting the forces of evil which beset the world today.

"The threat of destruction by nuclear warfare is secondary to the threat of the breakdown of the moral conscience of mankind which would permit such a holocaust," she declared.

Mrs. Gale spoke in the church edifice at Monte Verde and Sixth Streets at the invitation of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel. A member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, she was introduced by John Gates, First Reader in the church.

Evil in any form is accounted for in Christian Science as "a false suggestive sense mentally entertained," not as the creation of a personal God or a personal devil, the lecturer said.

The remedy for this false sense is indicated in the definition of "angels" presented in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 581): "God's passing to man; spiritual intuitions, pure and perfect; the inspiration of goodness, purity, and immortality, counteracting all evil, sensuality and mortality," she stated.

"Looking out upon the world today," Mrs. Gale said, "no one can doubt the need of the understanding of some force which will counteract the 'evil, sensuality and mortality' which flaunt themselves on every side."

In this age of immense power, she added, the "counteracting influence of God's thoughts passing to man" is the real need of mankind.

WANDERING RAINDROPS

The water which you draw from your faucet has come a long distance. Once it was part of the ocean. Then one day it ascended into the sky, played around there for a while and finally, getting restless, formed into raindrops and fell to the earth.

Somewhere along the line your waterworks picked it up and put it into a carefully engineered storage and distribution system so that you could have it to use in any way you see fit — and at any time. Your water supply system tames the wild water and brings it to you at rates as low as it is possible to make them.

Martha's Fashions To Be Shown At All Saints' Tea

Martha's of Monterey, recently opened shop for the showing of fine apparel for women, will provide the fashions for the Fashion Show and Silver Tea, sponsored by The Woman's Auxiliary of All Saints' Episcopal Church, to be given in the Carmel Parish Hall on Thursday, September 20.

Martha Bickel, owner of Martha's of Monterey, has chosen, in association with Woman's Auxiliary members of the church, a large array of autumn-into-winter fashions featuring particularly cocktail and dressy knits, many with metallic and jewel detail; new fall woollens for day and dressy wear, and after-dark costumes for dinner, theater, at-home and party wear.

Casual fashions — sweaters, stoles and unusual knitted accessories also will be featured in the All Saints' fashion show.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

My garden has lost a friend. My garden is very sad. For over seven years a kindly soul has shared my garden with me and now he is gone. The death of Mr. J. F. Duval, recently, has made many gardens sad, for he was the organizer of some 20 home gardens on this peninsula. Never in the many years he helped me make things grow, did I ever address him other than "Mister Duval". There was great dignity about this man, and while I held for him, deep affection, I never presumed.

Mr. Duval was philosopher and humanitarian. In all the years we worked together, I never heard an unkind expression pass his lips. In fact, he taught me more about growing plants than I ever learned in books. This great friend was deeply religious, and many conversations we have held while digging here and there, have enriched my own life.

Mr. Duval was efficient in many lines, and took great joy in helping many women, living alone, with details beyond our concepts. A door could be repaired, a room freshened with paint . . . a drainage problem was met and conquered. Our dependence upon this kindly friend has left a group of saddened home owners. We feel enriched from our association with Mr. Duval, and as we look about our gardens, everywhere we see vistas of his efficiency and helpfulness. Jesse F. Duval, was a true gentlemen, both in spirit and in behavior.

A Kewpie Palace . . .

The date of opening will be announced later. You'll want to meet Bonnie Lee, who made this shop possible, and we feel sure that Hugh Comstock, the builder of dreams, will be given a place of honor on the opening day.

You've guessed it. The "Queen Mab's Grotto"; the "Palace for Kewpies" (how many of the new generation know what is a Kewpie?) is that most photographed building in Carmel for the past 30 years, now the home of John and Elsie Grandfield's The Tuck Box English Tea Room.

Jon Gregory Arrives

Jon Gregory Watkins, first child for Pfc. and Mrs. Donald Elbert Watkins, was born at Fort Ord Hospital on August 29. His father came to Fort Ord in January as a trumpet player with the Fifth Division band. He is a music graduate from Sul Ross State College in Alpine, Texas, and after his release from the Army plans a music teaching career. John's father also plays with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra on occasion.

Grandparents Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bowden left on Saturday for their home in Alpine after two weeks here seeing their first grandchild, and, on September 16, Jon's other grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Watkins, will arrive from Weslaco, Texas, to meet their first grandchild.

Jay Chalkley Born

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Chalkley (Jacqueline Briggs) have a son, Jay Hamilton, born in Monterey Hospital on September 8. He weighed a husky eight pounds, nine ounces when he was born. Waiting to greet Jay when he returned home with his mother on Wednesday was his older sister, Jane, two and a half years old.

Leigh Visits McKenneys

Mrs. Basil Allaire (Leigh McKenney) spent last weekend here with Dr. and Mrs. A. Carol McKenney. Basil, her husband, is interned at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco and was unable to get away from his medical duties and accompany Leigh on the visit home.

Ray Wo's Houseguest

Mr. Lawrence Nevins, who is a graduate student in history at Columbia University, spent the week here as house guest of Mr. Ray Wo, instructor in Chinese at the Army Language School. Ray took his guest hiking up coal mine canyon, showed him Point Lobos, The Sur and the other beauty spots on the Peninsula. Also, he gave a party one evening so Mr. Nevins could meet his students. Nevins and Ray were classmates when the latter attended Columbia.

Nevins flew out from New York and visited for a week with friends in Berkeley before coming to the Monterey Peninsula.

Rice's Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rice were surprised when they arrived at the Presidio Youth Center on August 31, their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. They found a silver-clothed table, lighted with candles, decorated with flowers and centered by a wedding cake, the work of the Taw Twirlers square dance group. Paul is caller for the group. Also present were other friends and the Rice children, Karen, Paul and David. Everybody danced and played games. At the end of the festivities, Paul and Valeta were presented with a silvered horn of plenty into which each guest dropped a silver dollar as they kissed the bride and groom of 25 years ago.

Choates Return To Live

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bradford Choate have come back to Carmel to live permanently. A year ago in April they decided to move to San Mateo but find that they like Carmel best. They are living on San Carlos Street until the house they are building at Thirteenth and Monte Verde Streets is completed.

Audubon Field Trip

Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society members attending the field trip to Big Sur on Sunday are asked to meet at the intersection of Highway One and Carmel Valley Road at 9:00 o'clock in the morning. Guests are welcome on the expedition.

First Audubon Meeting

The first meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society was held at Carmel High School last Friday night. Highlight of the meeting were reports on the Audubon summer camp at Norden. Scholarships were given by the society to Elmer Highley, science teacher, Monterey High; Edwin L. Hixon, ranger, Point Lobos Park, and Carl G. Lonnecker. Lonnecker was formerly ranger at Big Sur Park but is now Supervisor of State Monuments in Monterey. Each of these men gave his ideas about the camp and all agreed that the locale and personnel were "tops."

On account of pressure of other activities C. Edward Graves resigned as conservation chairman and Mrs. James Moody was appointed to replace him.

It was brought out, rather strongly, that the Audubon Society is a great conservation movement and is not interested in birds alone.

West's Back From Trip

Mr. and Mrs. R. Rolleston West are back from a six weeks' Canadian trip. They visited Vancouver, then flew with the British Columbia Mountaineers to remote regions of the Coastal Range to scale mountain peaks and explore glaciers. Mrs. West (Barbara Horder) also spent some of the time painting the magnificent country.

Nicholson Wins Prize

R. H. Nicholson of Carmel Valley has won a new electric fry pan in the nationwide $100,000 Housepower contest being sponsored by the electric industry.

The contest, which continues until September 30, is a feature of the industry's program to highlight the need for full Housepower—the capacity of a household wiring system to accommodate all the electrical conveniences available to modern homemakers.

Arriolas Now Carmelites

Gordo, syndicated comic strip character, is a resident of Carmel now, as his creator Gus Arriola has come with his wife, Frances, and their ten year old son, Carlin, to live on Carmel Point. Carlin is in the fifth grade at Sunset School and Gordo is keeping Gus Arriola "working like mad".

"At least I can see the ocean when I'm working", says Arriola, "and sometimes I sneak to the beach in the daytime. Then I have to work at night, but, you can't see the ocean at night, so it's not so bad."

The Arriolas have tried living in La Jolla and for the past five years in Phoenix, Arizona.

"But it looks as though we're in Carmel permanently", declares Arriola, "we've made the final move."

Gold and white chrysanthemums were arranged about the reception room with flat bowls of gold begonias. The table was centered with an arrangement of gold roses and gold begonias floated in the punch in the large silver bowl. Cakes decorated with gold leaves were served to the guests with the punch.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Guy Noble and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Noble, from Raymond, California. Mrs. Noble is Mr. Belvail's sister. Morse, a set of silk-screened golf cartoons. The letter expresses the President's appreciation of the gift and the humor of the golfing scenes depicted in the cartoons.

David Looks Like Father

The Pine Cone received a letter from Nancie Brown Moore this week announcing the birth of a son, David Geoffrey Moore, born on August 14, at the Fort Bragg Army Hospital in North Carolina.

"Davie weighed in at seven pounds, three and three-quarter ounces and was 20 and a half inches long," reports his mother. "He looks like his father, Bill, even matching him for his red hair."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON
Divine Mind's triumph over the forces of materialism will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter."

Accounts of divine power and healing — including Joshua's victory at Jericho and Christ Jesus' walking on the sea — will be among passages read from the Holy Bible.

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following passage will be read (139:4): "From beginning to end, the Scriptures are full of accounts of the triumph of Spirit, Mind, over matter. Moses proved the power of Mind by what men called miracles; so did Joshua, Elijah, and Elisha."

Celebrate Oktoberfest With 5th On Sept. 22 At The Fair Grounds For Benefit Of German Orphans

FORT ORD, CALIF., Sept. 6—A bit of old Bavaria will be transplanted to the Monterey Peninsula Saturday, September 22, when a group from Fort Ord will stage an authentic Oktoberfest.

The brassy UM-PA-PA of German music and the hoop-la gaiety of Munich will prevail as more than 500 persons feast on German-style wurst, semmel-brot and genuine German draft beer. The celebration will be conducted in the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Purpose of the Oktoberfest is two-fold, according to Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Plourde, chairman for the event. The first is to help recall memories for members of the 5th Division who look back with fondness on Oktoberfests in which they took part while stationed in Germany. The second and most important reason is to continue their charitable assistance to German orphanages, many of whom were virtually adopted by 5th Division personnel while in Germany.

Many thousands of Americans have experienced the gayness of the Munich Oktoberfest. It is a mammoth county fair that is held in the center of the city, capital of Bavaria.

Residents from miles around and countless visitors from other nations move into this metropolis to parade in fancy costumes, guzzle rivers of beer and stuff themselves with food. Before Oktoberfest is over the city is virtually turned upside down.

It is a zany time, and Colonel Plourde's committee is arranging for a somewhat similar observance locally. In Munich the celebration is a large-scale April Fools Day. As an example, while it is an Oktoberfest, it traditionally must be started in September.

Historically, the Oktoberfest dates back to the early 1800's when the thousand year old friction between Saxony and Bavaria was finally healed.

Prince Ludwig I, who would succeed his father, Maximilian I, to the Bavarian throne, successfully wooed the Saxon Princess Theresa. To symbolize the marriage and the manner in which Bavaria and Saxony would come to a mutual understanding, a huge festival was planned.

The great day arrived and both Saxons and Bavarians took turns in displaying their crafts, and each presenting his own type of entertainment. It was a huge success and Maximilian decreed that it would be held annually, principally as a time for the farm people to get together following harvest.

Today the Bavarians still take their Oktoberfest seriously. The breweries try to outdo each other both in the quality of their amber liquid, as well as displays. Beer is served only in huge liter beer mugs. No one would dare quaff a smaller drink because it would be a slight to the dignity of Bavarian beer.

Many 5th Division personnel brought authentic Bavarian costumes to Fort Ord with them and they plan to wear them to the local Oktoberfest. A specially picked group from the brass section of the Division Band has been practicing to give the event a real German flavor. The Army Language School, through its German department, is lending assistance.

Proceeds from the event will be turned over to the German consul in San Francisco for distribution to specific orphanages.

Highlands Wants Out Of Recreation District

that the south boundaries of the proposed district might extend too far (the proposed boundaries are the same as those of the Carmel Unified School District) but he objected to their being moved as far north as the Carmel River.

He stated that the purpose of the district was to provide funds ($10,000 a year) operating expenses for the Carmel Youth Center; support for Carmel Foundation Town House, if they wanted it, and to acquire "Green Belt" land.

He said it was proposed to set the first year's tax at the 25 cent maximum, which would raise around $70,000, to get a sinking fund. After that the tax should not be more than 7 or 8 cents, he thought.

The hearings are held to acquaint the Supervisors with the wishes of the tax payers. They have the power to fix the boundaries so that strongly objecting groups can have their land eliminated. In case of widespread objections, they can refuse to call an election and drop the project.
